EDUCATION

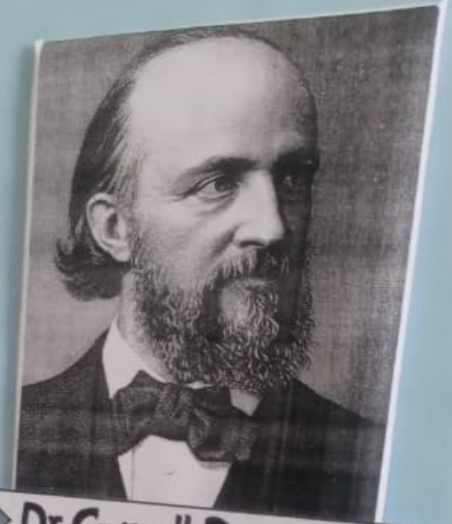

Dr. Carroll Dunham received his medical education from Columbia University College of Physicians & Surgeons in New York, where he earned his M.D. degree in 1850. He studied under some of the most prominent homeopaths of his time including Dr. Joseph Hering, Dr. Constantine Hering.

CONTRIBUTION

Dr. Dunham was a strong advocate of classical homeopathy, emphasizing importance of following Hahnemann's principles strictly, particularly the law of similars, minimal doses, and the single remedy approach.

His leadership roles included serving as president of the American Institute of Homeopathy and organizing World's Homeopathic Convention in 1876.
